SAYS CAPTAIN KIDD WAS NOT A BUCCANEER

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 29.—Some history are wrong. Captain Kidd was not a pirate and his alleged treasure does not exist. Professor James H. Thompson, a private investigator, has been investigating the life of the pirate and has concluded that he was a private investigator and not a pirate.

These are the findings of John H. Thompson, who has been investigating the life of the pirate and has concluded that he was a private investigator and not a pirate.

Before leaving England, Mr. Thompson stated that he had been investigating the life of the pirate and has concluded that he was a private investigator and not a pirate.

On September 4, 1699, with a cargo of gold and silver, Captain Kidd was ordered to sail for the East Indies. He was ordered to sail for the East Indies and was ordered to sail for the East Indies.

Hand-Craft Beads and Trinkets

according to individual taste, and each strand may differ from every other strand. The necklace shown at the middle of the three pictured is made in this way, with lavender beads showing flecks of rose and coral strung on a lavender silk cord. Knots in the cord keep the beads from slipping, and the strand is finished with an ornament.

The necklaces at each side are made of colored paper and glass beads. Colored advertising pages cut from magazines provide the paper, which is cut into long, slender triangles. The length of the bead is governed by the width of the base of the triangle. Placing the base of the triangle on a knitting needle, the paper is wound tightly and evenly around the needle, the pointed end fastened down with a bit of twine. The bead is then dipped in clear shellac, strung on a string, and allowed to dry. When a sufficient number of beads have been made they are strung with very small glass beads.

Curry, the leader of the group, whose skull is easily first among the worst and most deformed specimens of human degeneracy. When examined during his trial the savages, cruel look of his small, evasive eyes started even the professional doctors of crime. Small wonder that the Bolshevik dictator of Hungary, Bela Kun, felt afraid of the man and never met the chief of his devoted bodyguard without previously slipping a revolver into his pocket.

All the 30 were members of Bela Kun's fearful bodyguard called the "Lenine boys" all were found guilty of numerous murders and robberies and examined in their lifetime by the same doctors when under trial.

"The skulls," runs the report, "are prognathic characterized by an exceptionally low forehead, deep eye-caves, big mouth, sharp protruding jaws, deficient dentition. When compared with the skulls of notorious common murderers preserved in the museum of the police they show the signs of degeneracy in a much less degree."

LYRICS OF LIFE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

BRAVERY.

All bravery is not in death. However glad and glorious—To breathe the gases' toxic breath. Among the clouds a bird to be. Or to go down within the sea—Oh, it is brave to battle thus. And yet not all of bravery. There is some bravery in life. That never wins the world's applause. There is no thrill in daily strife. To set our pulses leaping high—Yet braver men may live than die. May suffer more in some good cause Than they who now in slumber lie. All bravery is merely this: To live or die, as fate demands. But living, dying, never miss. The duty conscience makes so plain. To know the right, the right maintain. Although it lose us life or lands And pay no recompense but pain. To face old Death amid men's cheers. Yet, that is bravery indeed—But to fight on through losing years. Some unencouraged task to do. Believe when none believe in you. In public smile, in secret bleed—May God not count this something too? (Copyright.)

LIBRARIANS.

THE demand for the trained librarian is on the increase. But many young women are leaving the regular library to take up allied work that pays better.

The new demand outside of the regular library comes from big business corporations who want their business organized. Special literature of all sorts is part of their daily material, and they see the need of a proper index for all this material, and for making it available for immediate use as the books in a library are available.

Aside from the bigger concerns are such clients as a lawyer or a doctor with a large practice. Such men will often have a whole library that is useless unless properly indexed.

Many women who began as librarians are now holding excellent positions where their library training proved the essential in their new work.

As the librarian can as yet look for wages at best to hardly more than $1,200 a year, the best trained and more ambitious women are following the commercial path.

But a librarian's training is proving to be excellent for other work. Many girls do not stop at organizing special libraries for their new employers. They go on to become heads of certain departments, undertake the installing of business systems of filing and cataloging, and even run offices of their own.

PREPARING FOR PRESENTATION PASSION PLAY

(By Associated Press.)

OSHERAMERGAU, July 29.—Since the decision was made to give the delayed Passion Play in 1922 Osheramergau has taken on new life. Carpenters, painters and masons, many of them wearing long hair and beards which mark them as participants in previous dramatizations of the passion of Jesus Christ, are restoring the open-air theatres and villas which have had no attention during the war period.

Busy housewives are preparing their homes for the reception of visitors who will fill the little village next summer. Scene painters are rebuilding and restoring the representations of parts of the Holy Land where Jesus lived and died and rose again from the tomb.

Needlewomen are fashioning robes for the apostles and scores of other biblical figures who participate in the play. Although the cast will not be elected by the directors of the play until October, young women who have distinguished themselves in other religious plays given by the Osheramergau folk are fashioning simple robes suitable for the role of Mary in the hope that they will be chosen to enact the part of Jesus' mother, the highest honor which can come to an Osheramergau woman.

The great auditorium which shelters spectators of the Passion Play is a wooden structure supported by about 1,000 posts. It has seats for 4,000 persons, arranged much after the plan of a modern opera house. When the play is over one end of the auditorium is removed entirely, and the stage stands at some distance from the end of the building, in such a position that the mountains through a background for the setting. The audience is entirely sheltered in case of rain and the main part of the stage has a glass roof.

Even among the children the reverence for the Passion Play is very marked and in imitation of their elders they are constantly acting in the hope of being chosen for important roles in the production given every 10 years.

As good character is insisted upon as the basic requirement for participation in the play, the danger of being debarrd from a part in the historic spectacle is held constantly over the village children and is a far better corrective influence than the boyies invented for most children.

Some genius unemployed for the present could well serve humanity and benefit the rest of mankind at the same time by getting up a match that will light when it is struck on the box.

Modern fashions for women are a sort of take-off on the old ones.
